THEORY OF SUICIDE IN KIKER'S DEATH

Watchman Received Five Bullet Wounds: "Open" Verdict Is Returned by Coroner's Jury.

PISTOL CLUTCHED TIGHTLY IN HAND

Any Wound Would Have Produced Death, Doctor Says; Words Written on Box Puzzle Probers.

Dead from five wounds, received oder mysterious circumstances that poparently barred either a suicide or nurder theory, H. C. Kiker, 58, of 31 Allene avenue, night watchman, early Friday morning was found in the boiler room of the locked Wright Hotel Supply Company building at

Facts pointing to self-destruction and other evidence indicating murder caused a coroner's jury to return a erdict of death at the hands of a party or parties unknown to the jury. At the funeral home of J. Austin Dillon, Coroner Paul Donehoo erged from an exhaustive investiation of the case with neither the ory clearly established, but with the der angle seemingly stronger than theory of suicide. Police, baffled the death, went into an intensive ch for information bearing on the manner of Kiker's death, the possibility of unknown enemies slaying Kiker, and the mode of exit from the building employed by a slayer that they do not know definitely exists.

Found in Boiler Room.

Kiker's body, in a pool of his own blood, was found in the boiler room in the basement of the building, the revolver elenched tightly in the right hand in such a manner as if the shots had been self-inflicted. Jennie Young, negro porter, made the discovery shortly after 7 o'clock Friday morning when he won't should be the state of the court and suppress the true

Young immediately reported to O.

F. Campbell, shipping clerk. Police were summoned and an investigation revealed that all doors and windows were locked when the employes reported for work Friday morning.

Mrs. Delphia Hearing, of 487 Whitehall, next door to the Wright building, said that she heard several loud reports between 10 and 10:30 o'clock Thursday night, but thought they were the backfiring of an automobile. lead pencil scrawled on one of the boards. The words were deciphered thus:

"Oh I hurt so

"Bad fired (or find) it."

"Gun (or Gus) at me."

Police were baffled by the apparent impossibility of a man wounded as Kiker was wounded writing even a word after being hit. An examination by Dr. J. C. Blalock, county physician, revealed that any one of three wounds would have caused instant death, and any of the five would have been fatal. Kiker's right hand was trust out from the body at an angle to indicate that the might have fired the gun at the top of his head, but, according to Dr. Blalock, if he had shot himself in the heart, he could not have fired the gun at the top of the "public enemy" roster.

Thus the man whose name has been mentioned in connection with nearly bill, several of the Western & Atlantic bill, several of them smarting under the delay of the senate, were recalling that the chief opponents of the measure sure are Senators Pitner, Redwine and Lankford. All three were members of State George H. Carswell in his race for governor. Lankford contributed from his throne of immunity.

Questioned many times, out on bond now on a vagrancy charge, Capone had never before been brought to trial his home city. Philadelphia police found a concealed weapon on him in the spring of 1929 and locked him up for almost a year.

There was no doubt about how hard Capone fought the contempt of court case. Although he did not take the stand himself, he employed three attorneys to defend him, offered suggestions as to the cross-exmination of witnesses, and was visibly shaken at the verdict.

Capone's witnesses were two doctors.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.--(AP)-Alphonse Capone, the scarfaced "big fel-low" of Chicago gangs, was adjudged in contempt of federal court today and sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Cook county jail.

Capone's witnesses were two doctors and two nurses who said he was actually bedridden for three weeks, that his condition was very serious and that he might have suffered a relapse from exposure to the cold.

Judge Wilkerson in summing up the case said there were many obvious falsehoods in the affidavit, particularly the statement that on March 5 Capone had been out of bed only 10 days.

In the Dangerous Months be sure of the Family Diet

THIS is the season of colds and flu. Your doctor will tell you that many a family is susceptible to colds because they are eating foods that seem nourishing-but really are only filling.

Bread is a vital part of diet. But to bring you the protection you need, it must be good bread-made with the best ingredients that money can buy. And it is obvious that you can't have such quality at cheap prices.

For bread is like everything else, you get only what you pay for. And cheap bread is likely to be expensive bread-for if it fails to nourish you properly, sickness may cost you many times more than the few pennies you save.

Play safe. Don't take chances. Don't say "Give me a loaf of bread." Say to your grocer-"Give me a loaf of Merita Bread"-and you'll be sure you are buying the maximum in nutrition, in health for your family.

Merita Bread is the South's most popular bread-outselling all others regardless of price-because it is better bread, and Southern women know it.

the descendant of a long line of southerners, and having in my day prepared many a meal, I arise to say that potlikker is the result of boiling turnip greens or mustard greens with good fat meat, sensoned with salt and a pod of red pepper. Beans should never have any potlikker left, if they are cooked properly, as they should be cooked almost dry, just enough juice he left to prevent them sticking to the pot. Failure to do this is the reason so many have soppy, flavorless beans, all the good taste is poured away with the potlikker.

Cornpone should be made of good waterground meal and eaten hot, with plenty of butter and either rich fresh sweet milk or butter milk to drink with it. It should never be crumbled or dunked.

Dear Sir:

I have been reading so much about this potlikker business in your paper that I am compelled now to try to defend this old dish. I think it is my undivided duty to do so in respect and honor to my parents and grandparents—well, myself, also.

PHILOSOPHY OF DUNKING NOTED BY KEEN OBSERVER

Editor Constitution: Like politics, the south is not solid on either dunking or crumbling. There is also a difference between cornbread and cornpone. In Virginia, spoon bread is a favorite dish, and, while made from corn meal, is little known in this section.

All potlikker is not alike. There is a kind made from the greens of a "broadcast" patch that has seen many a frosty morning and cooked with a hunk of fat meat from the side of a hog that has long ceased to vote. Then we have potlikker made from tender greens cultivated in rows and seasoned from a streak of lean and streak of fat from the side of a prize-winning shoat.

In Mississippi dunkers are as thick as democrats in the interior districts. In the cities and larger towns crumblers predominate. Of course, a great many "raised" on potlikker claim not to know what it is. I expect the section of Louisiana which Governor Long has in mind are dunkers. Potlikker is a primitive dish and originated where collards were eaten without a fork and coffee sipped from a saucer.

A cornpone is made without much or any grease, being rounded into a small pone and cooked until hard. On being dunked it does not become soggy and is cut with the spoon in mixing with the likker. Modern cornbread is easily crumbled and quickly converts the liquor into a mushy mass. A person with a delicate appetite would not consider cornpone while he would like cornbread. To a rail split-would hike combread. To a rail splitter or a man who has plowed from sun to sun, a big bowl of potlikker with two or three compones "dunked" in would be to him a dish fit for the gods. If he were given modern-day cornbread cooked with eggs and grease and buttered he would probably neither dunk or crumble it.

The man way back in the country who really knows what toil is, delights in a big bowl of potlikker with two or three hefty size, well-rounded compones dunked in and to give it zest he eats with it an onion about the size of a baseball and sips two or three cups of black coffee from the saucer. The man who mows the yard for exercise would prefer that the grease be skimmed from the likker, after which he would crumble into it a small piece of "delicious" egg bread.

Georgia, no doubt, has lots of dunkers who will be discovered when good roads find their way into the Diversion Plan Opposed.

House members are unequivocally opposed to any form of diversion and a check Friday of senate members indicated that the Battle-Allen bill, once it gets up for debate, will be passed without any diversion amendment. The house, in the meantime, has the Boykin income tax bill, which it will probably defeat as now written, and a bill to levy taxes on motor carriers.

Strong argument is being advanced for passing the Western & Atlantic bill, for a period of 10 years, and then for adjournment, deferring all other matters to the regular session. Only the Huddleston resolution to appoint a commission to make a study of reorganization has assembly preference over anything else suggested for the special session. It is believed that this will be passed with little opposition and that a commission will be ready with the Russell administration bill when the regular session meets in June. eets in June.

meets in June.
With reorganization in mind, the house Friday passed the senate resolution inviting Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, to address a joint session at his convenience. The former New York governor and candidate for president is to be in North Carolina, to address that state's general assembly, on Monday. It is hoped that he will come to Georgia on this trip, although it was explained Friday that he has to be in Washington March 5 for a meeting of the democratic national executive committee.

Skipping about then from one thing to another, the house finally passed the bill appropriating $17,000 to newspapers of the state for advertising the constitutional amendments voted upon last fall. Luther Still, of Fulton, opposed the bill on the ground that the governor had inserted the advertisements in too many papers.

By unanimous consent the house adjourned out of respect to Speaker Richard B. Russell, Jr., whose aunt, Miss Patience Dillard, died at Winder Thursday night.

Several new resolutions were introduced in the house, the principal one calling for appointment of a commission of 12 representatives and four senators to make a study of the situation in regard to congressional reapportionment of Georgia, which must be acted on by the regular session of the legislature in June in accordance with an act of congress based on the 1030 census.

its action of yesterday in adopting a section permitting the state tax commissioner to use 4 per cent of the revenue derived from the bill to carry out its provisions. With the approval of the author of the bill. Representative Boykin, the house agreed unanimously to strike out the entire section.

Super-Shell Ethyl is different. It contains Ethyl fluid, of course-a generous charge that assures positive anti-knock value. But with this Ethyl compound is now blended a special, superior gasoline.

Shell engineers developed it. They knew that inferior gasoline-no matter what was added-doesn't deliver best performance in your car. They set out to make anti-knock fuel utterly free of slow-firing, "heavy" particles. Months of experiment . . . then they succeeded!

It is a matter of "washing" the gasoline in a series of huge refining towers where the gasoline vapors travel over Shell's amazing system of "bubble cap trays." Here, by minute new adjustment of heat and by special design and arrangement of trays, all the harmful, heavy "fractions" so often left in gasoline are "scrubbed" out.

Into a special pipe flows only the volatile, lively gasoline which Shell blends with genuine Ethyl fluid!

Thus Super-Shell Ethyl gives you every quality you need to get finest engine operation. Quick starting. Smooth, even power to put you in front of the crowd. High antiknock value.

Now . . . see what really fine performance your motor is capable of giving. Try Super-Shell Ethyl today. One test will convince you.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Feb. 27.—

Fashion Queen of Atlanta Will Be Named at 9 O'Clock.

Tonight will bring the climax of the Fashion reve that has been the attraction extraordinary at the Para-mount theater all this week, sharing honors the past three days with "Viennese Nights," Sigmund Romberg's romantic musical comedy of Vienna during the reign of Emperor Franz Joseph.

ing the reign of Emperor Franz Joseph.

When the final performance of the style, musical and daneing revue is concluded at 9 o'clock, Mrs. Green Dodd Warren, mistress of ceremonies, will announce the name of the young lady chosen by the ballots of a representative committee of judges as Atlants's fashion queen. With proper ceremonies the nominee will be crowned Miss Fashion Queen of Atlanta.

Twenty-eight major business enterprises are participating in the event, produced by Ronald B. Woodyard, head of the system which hears his name, with the co-operation of The Constitution and the Paramount theater and sponsored by the Young Matrons' Circle as a means of raising funds for Tallulah Falls school.

A group of lovely young matrons, debutantes and sub-debs are modeling delectable new spring creations chosen especially for the occasion by J. P. Allen & Co., who are furnishing costumes and accessories for the fashion sequences. Star pupils from the dakee studio of Miss Virginia Semon and Leonard White are enlivening the show with clever solos, specialties and line numbers; Tom Brannon and his stage band provide a tuneful background for the show and present one novelty number rich in comedy; Earl Dunlap, of Georgia Tech football fame, assists in several numbers, showing on behalf of George Muse Clothing Company what the well-dressed man will wear; Miss Frances Keith, bearing the title of Miss Guest Fashion Queen, of South Carolina, is attractively featured in three appearances, and Charles Wynne, popular tenor, is featured in several song numbers that go over in great style.

The Fashion revue will be seen twice today, once at the afternoon performance and again for the last time, at 8:30 this evening when one of the many graceful and beautiful members of the cast will be proclaimed Fashion Queen of Atlanta.

Pallbearers at the funeral will be E. S. Joiner, N. E. Garland, F. A. Jordan, Dr. Harry Vaughan, Dr. I. Murray Hair and Howard I. Fields. Mr. Carroll is survived by his widow, three sisters and two brothers.

The jute bagging is now made in India, much of it by Americans who have moved their factories over there to get the profits of field prices for jute butts and the ridiculous low prices for Indian labor. One of the great kicks of the so-called escaped political prisoners from Russia, who are now in Paris "estab-lishing the truth about conditions in soviet prison camps," concerns the number of trees each man had to cut number of trees each man had to cut down in a day's work. As in all other countries where lumbering operations are carried on, these Russians work in pairs. They rose at 6 in the morn-ing and had to show thirty-five trees between the two of them before night-fall. The trees had to be cut level with the soil. They had saws and axes.

Thirty-five trees for two men isn't an awful lot. Canadian lumber jacks would smile at the thought that this was considered hard work. They drop was considered hard work. They drop thirty-five trees easily in a morning's run, and trim them. The question is how thick are those trees in Siberia. Ordinary pine forests, we are told; up in Kapuskasing, on the Canadian National railway and in the district around Iroquois Falls and Porcupine, ound Iroquois Falls and Porcupine, en cut down sixty trees of ordinary pruce and balsam, and not only trin the tops, but cut the trees up into 4-feet lengths for pulpwood, and two or three cords of this stuff in a day isn't anything extraordinary.

The notching of a tree, say 3 feet means the two individual notchers must work together, would take another three or four hours. Seven hours in all. Those Russians had a soft time. Ask any of the Canadian veterans who toke up forest land on the transcontinental after the war.

Mr. Jacob Epstein, who upset the London critics more than once with his sculpture work, has turned out a new piece which he gave the title "Genesis." It shows the figure of a woman. But the outlines are very hazy and her face seems only half-formed. It seems to be breaking through a veil. Perhaps that is the way the blind man saw for the first time after Jesus touched his eyes and asked him: "What seest thou?" and the healed man answered: "I see men walking like trees." He saw things as we see them when a low autumn mist hangs over the mendows, vague and gaunt, emerging, into reality, as it were. It is in this way that the gonius of Epstein conceived the dawn of creation. The esthetes may fume at Mr. Jacob Epstein, who upset the genius of Epstein conceived the dawn of creation. The esthetes may fume at him all they like. Epstein's marble comes remarkably close to the modern idea of the awakening of man to the consciousness of humanity through evolution.

The Problem of Abolishing Poverty as a Curse in Our American Civilization.

It is also true that Jesus said "the poor ye have always with you," but He did not mean by that to predicate a permanent social condition. He meant only, in another relation, to state a current fact. All of His teachings and actions were to the other con-clusion—that in a human brotherhood there should be none in absolute help-

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, whatever conditions may have produed an abject poor class in any civ-ilization that has been or is else-where, there should be none in these United States of America.

That there is poverty among us anywhere is a great and indefensible indictment of the principles of our peculiar profession of civilization, a condemnation of our humanity, and terrible contradiction of our boasted Christianity was not propagated by the apostles of Christ for charitable relief purposes. It was not designed to be the world's "Red Cross" to feed, That sort of Christianity does not mean that "communism" which many predicate and dread, for the very essence of "communism" is common described by the communism of the problem of abolishing poverty from our American civilization. With him at the head of the crusade a victory for it should not be far away.

Never in all the history of humanity, except in a limited way in the case of Moses framing the civil and social polity of the Hebrew nation in Palestine, has there been so Providential an opportunity for a people to abolish the curse of poverty.

the case of another war, the wealth of the nation shall be conscripted for service the same as the rank and file of our manhood.

That seems an eminently feasible and equitable proposition. It will, doubtless, be adopted, but probably not until another war threatens.

But it evokes the further suggestion that if the potential wealth of the people can be enrolled specifically as part of our war forces, why cannot that wealth also be enrolled and assessed in times of peace to protect

No Injustice-No Hardship. The business skill and statesman The business skill and statesman-ship of our people are competent to work such a proposition into operative form and social success. There can be no doubt of that. The charitable organizations, the churches, the labor unions, the social economists should enter into a late today, a few hours after the senate had joined the house in overriding a presidential veto to the loan relief bill increasing loans to World War veterans on compensation certificates.

In any concerted movement to that splendid effect they would have the sympathy and aid of the president of the United States, Herbert Hoover, who has applied his genius and engineering mind to the problem of abolishing poverty from our American civilization.

The senate vote of 76 to 17 to discreard the veto of President Hoover followed acrimonious debate and demonstrations from a crowded gallery. The house yesterday overrode the "no" of Mr. Hoover by a similar decisive margin.

The Baltimore veteran's name was not disclosed. A director of the veterans' bureau said he was "in great want," and that his son "needed an operation badly to recover from a serious illness," and that the veteran would use the loan for that.

Orders were given immediately after the vote for machinery to be set in motion for lending. The first loan check was issued five minutes after the senate had voted.

Some ex-soldiers were in line at the central bureau to apply for loans before the vote.

Veterans' Administrator Hines tonight began employing additional help to meet the demands from the 3,400,000 certificate holders eligible to obtain the loans.

The following extract from a cable sent to Washington June 20 seems pertinent:

The reasons for sending men with insufficient instruction are fully appreciated in view of the large increase in number of troops sent over during past three months, and the inequalities in training are fully considered here. The plan of separating recently drafted men from divisions and giving them special training for a longer period than the others before being put in the line has already been adopted. It will, however, reduce the fighting strength considerably of several divisions to be ordered into the line.

Must Keep Divisions Intact.

This situation emphasizes the importance of establishing the arule at home of keeping divisions intact, both as to officers and enlisted men, from the time they are organized until they are sent to France. The plan of using divisions through which to pass large numbers of men for instruction is very detrimental to thorough training of the divisions. It need not be pointed out that it takes much time to consolidate a resentative body of the service armies, departments of battle. It was the exception to find such men equal to the active command of troops.

Pershing Urged Age Limit.

I had early recommended that officers beyond the age of 40 for brigadiers and 45 for major generals should not be selected for active command in France except in rare instances. It had become no longer a question of theory. Yet up to the end valuable time was spent in attempts to prepare such officers for service, time which should have been devoted to the training of more promising material.

All questions of policy were as far

It appears superficial in many cases and generally lacks spirit and ag-gressiveness. In most of these divisions little attention has been given to training in one wargiven to training in open war-fare, and in this regard younger officers are especially deficient. The training appears to have been carried on in aperfunctory way and without efficient supervision. The geeral impression is that dihad not been submitted to him, as he stated in his usual cordial manner that it was his full intention to give every consideration to the men of proved efficiency in France, which was, in principle, all that I could wish. ordinates.
One subject that caused Secretary Baker some anxiety at that time was giving the press news of our operations in a way that would meet the persistent demands without disclosing legislation against that sort of propa-ganda. The following paragraph from a cable sent at the time is pertinent:

persistent demands without disclosing the numbers or locations of our forces, and which would "prevent the war department from being regarded as suppressing and withholding news."

Although necessarily never entirely satisfactory from either the news point of view or from that of morale building at home, this matter was adjusted as far as practicable through the distribution to the press by the depart ent of material contained in the periodical communiques published from my headquarters and cabled to the secretary.

These and such information from considerable experience, it was the inevitable conclusion that, except for the details of trench warfare, training under the French or British was of little value.

The adherence at home to instruction in trench warfare that was advocated by French instructors left us to teach open warfare. This was a task not easily overcome in the brief time that could be devoted to training after troops began to arrive in large numbers, under circumstances that demanded their early entry into active participation in operations. It was a question not merely of the service whom they later had to use error in retaining old officers in the service whom they later had to be given serious attention by the war department.

The reasons for sending men with insufficient instruction are fully appreciated in view of the large increase in number of troops sent over during past three months, and the inequalities in training are fully considered here. The plan of separating recently drafted men from divisions and giving them special training for a longer period than training for a longer perio which I had long advocated finally was recognized after prolonged debate and discussion. The board consisted of one representative from each of the Allied armies. It was simply the representative body of the several supply departments of the respective armies, and had nothing whatever to do with actual procurement.

It was expected to study questions of supply and adopt proper measures for the co-ordination of Allied resources and utilities.

Our supply officers were enjoined which should have been devoted to the training of more promising material.

All questions of policy were as far as possible taken up with the secretary of war. My experience in attempting to cover such matters by cable to the secretary furnished econclusive evidence that the best way to get them before him was through direct mail correspondence, as frequently, cabled requests were acted on without his knowledge and often in a manner adverse to the best interests. One of these questions was that of promotion to the grade of general officer.

After frequent attempts to obtain the promotion of several colonels whose abilities had been thoroughly tested in active service, and having failed to get their names included in a recent list of promotions, I sent a cable asking a reconsideration of my recommendations, suggesting that it be shown the secretary in person.

I also wrote the secretary immediately, giving him my point of two distributions of tried officers with the armies should mean to efficiency in my command. In a letter from him sone time later, it was clear that the cable

Cables from the var department June 22 stated that the colored people at home were being told that negro soldiers in France were always plead in the most dangerous positions, were being sacrificed to save the field to die without medical attention. It was not difficult to guess the origin of this sort of propaganda.

After frequent attempts to obtain the promotion of trace service, and having failed to get their names included in a recent list of promotions, I sent a cable asking a reconsideration of my proceed more time laters which are received to Croix de Guerre for concurrence of the same than the content of the promotion of tried officers with the armies would mean to efficiency in my command. The bill of exceptions will challenge Judge Mathews' decision of last month in which he ordered the corporation to furnish a bond of $125,000 to protect the interests of the Felton group, holders of the prior preferred stock of the company. The Delaware corporation. Dermott Shennwell, president, refused to furnish the bond, and announced its intention to appeal from the decision.

In the meantime, attorneys representing Felton filed the cross bill asking that Judge Mathews lift an injunction order signed by him last May, restraining the Felton group from holding a stockholders meeting and voting the stock through a default in the sales contract. The Felton group sold the common stock of the corporation to the Delaware corporation in December, 1928, and took prior preferred stock as collateral.

Judge Mathews delayed hearing of the cross bill today until the bill of exceptions comes up next week for approval. At that time the Felton group will oppose the efforts of the Shemwell group to obtain a supersedeas order, assuring the status quo pending the action of the Georgin su-Study Course.

Melancholy Fills World City Room Sunday World, will appear tomorrow in the World-Telegram and regularly on Saturdays hereafter. As Paper Goes to Bed for Last Time WORLD THANKS MEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 .- (A)-The | travel and "settle down to do

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(P)—The city room of the New York World. on the 12th floor of the golden domed Pulitzer building, was thronged with leg men, rewrite men, copy readers, beat men, special writers and copy boys when the last big story broke at They stood about as Lindesay Parrott sat at his typewriter to bat out the obituary of the newspaper on which they all worked when news of the sale of the Worlds to the Scripps-Howard interests was flashed.

The story was snatched from his typewriter in paragraphs. On its way to the city desk it went from hand to hand. And this morning the World was on the news stands as usual, carrying 10 columns telling about its own death, as well as a full report of all the other news of the day.

Walter Lippmann, editor, and Ralph E. Renaud, managing editor, were in Renaud's office, looking down on City Hall Park, when the decision came. They got the news first.

Renaud hurried out to the desk of Benjamin Franklin, night city editor. He told Franklin what had happened, a reporter burst through the door, bearing a copy of the decision. Partott sat down at his typewriter.

While his colleagues leaned over his shoulder, reading each word as is appeared, he wrote his lead:

"Sale of the World, the Evening World and the Sunday World—the three newspapers that Joseph Pullitzer, the elder, left in trust for his heirs—was authorized early this morning by Surrogate James A. Foley."

Paragraph by paragraph it followed. It was hurried across the city desk, to the copy desk and sped up to the composing room under the dome.

Paragraph by paragraph it followed. It was hurried across the city desk, to the copy desk and sped up to the composing room under the dome. It has been customary for some time for the World to print an "ear" on page one of its last edition each day. The "ear" said, "Final News Edition." Today it was just that. The Quarter-Century Club, composed of World employes who had been on the job 25 years or more, had been turned into an alumni institution. Many of these old-timers were on hand when the paper was put to bed for the last time. The lobster crew of the Evening World, not knowing whether they were to put out a paper today or whether their jobs had ended to the last time. The lobster crew of the Evening World, not knowing whether they were to nut out a paper today or whether their jobs had ended with last night's multiple-star sporting edition, reported for work as usual. When they got the news they left their typewriters, pastepots and shears, and joined the throng in the city room of the Morning World, where another staff was handling the story of the death of the papers.

Once again the illusion that newspapermen are hard-boiled fellows, untouchable by emotion, was broken. They were a sad lot.

A thronged Morning World city room at 2 a. m. was an unusual sight, ordinarily at that time only about six men were on hand, there for emergency. Ordinarily they play cards to pass the time, one of them keeping an eye on the news service copy in the event that something happens to require a make-over of the edition that already has been put to bed.

Page one of the final edition of the World carried a story about a woman found strangled in Van Cortland park, and another about a paralytic woman, speechless for four years, who found her voice again when she heard the pistol shot that ended her son's life. The first was written by Charles F. Stutz, the second by John W. Butcher. Ordinarily these staff members write anonymously, but on the occasion of their last job they got by lines.

WALTER LIPPMAN PLANS

TO TRAVEL AND WRITE Walter Lippman, retiring editor of the World, said today he plans to the world, changed the name of, the morning paper's support of the world, changed the name of, the morning newspaper included fit its purchase to The New York Repository.

A thronged Morning World city room at 2 a. m. was an unusual sight, ordinarily these staff members write anonymously, but on the creation, holding company for the Scripps-Howard for the world, changed the name of, the morning newspaper included fit its purchase to The New York Repository.

A thronged Morning World city room at 2 a. m. was an unusual sight, world—morning. evening and Sunday and in its wake appeare # purchase to The New York Repository. No announcement was made as to the possibility of the morning paper's sale, but speculation about possible bidders for it ranged through the list of those who had indicated an interest in the purchase of the World. While the contract for sale of the World newspapers to the Scripps-Howard group was pending in the court, Paul Block made and withdrew an offer for them; Frank E. Gannett said he might be interested; the employes sought to prepare their bid and Herbert Bayard Swope and others were mentioned as persons with whom sale of the World had been discussed. Grippy Aches Sinus Pains Aching Joints . .

The World-Telegram took over to-day several features of the Morning and Evening Worlds, including the comic strips of the latter, the comic cartoon of Will Johnstone and the theatrical column of Bide Dudley. The World-Telegram published Associated Press dispatches.

Rollin Kirby, cartoonist, Frank Sullivan, humorist; Harry Hansen, book critic, and others of the Morning World will join the World-Telegram staff.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 27.—(AP) DR. ALBERT EINSTEIN made by the investigating legislators Wednesday night after six weeks of probing in Nashville into the loss of state funds in bank failures.

There they will inquire into ho nearly $3,000,000 of the common wealth's money got jammed in the closedown of the Holston-Union National Bank and the Holston Trus Company, affiliated institutions. The legislators will move in a full body by train to Knoaville where they will conduct hearings Thursday and Friday and possibly Saturday when they will turn back to the capital city.

Before adjournment here today until Monday at 1 p. m., the committee permitted E. A. Goodloe, forece cashier of the Bank of Tennessee, to complete his testimony and gave a start to Timothy Graham Donovan, former secretary-treasurer of the Caldwell organization. Their information was more in the nature of an elaboration on that of J. Dewitt Carter, former vice president of the two Caldwell institutions, who took the stand as the first of five former Caldwell officers granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for their revelations.

The big, strapping, smiling Donovan, introduced as a son of the "Green Isle" who had dropped the "O" prefix to his name, told the committee that in the year preceding the sinking of the Caldwell establishments that "if anyone came around with money, we would put the strangle hold on them."

When they would hear that state officers had any state deposits for them he said that runners would "hotfoot it" to the capital. He said he went there twice himself to get a half million dollar deposit from State Treasurer John Nolan. On his second call, he said the treasurer wanted to all. he said the treasurer wanted to call, he said the treasurer wanted of the million dollar deposit from State Treasurer John Nolan. "Did Caldwell & Company or Rogers Caldwell know that you had been accepting deposits up to that time?" asked Attorney Joe V. Williams, committee counsel.

"I would say yes," replied Donovan. He explained that E. J. Heitzeberg, a vice president, did not know about the deposits because he was out of the city "the latter part of October and returned to Nashville November 2."

"And you continued to receive deposits up until the day of November 1?"

"The bank did, yes."

Donovan compared the Bank of Tennessee and Caldwell Co. to the "Siamese Twins" with each dependent upon the other.

other who was in perfect health died within three hours?" asked Williams. "Practically the same thing happened here," Donovan answered.

He said Caldwell & Co. operated almost entirely on borrowed money and that the capital stock of the company, organized in 1917, was not paid up until 10 years later. He said the capital stock was increased to $1,000,000 in June, 1929, and to $2,000,000 early in 1930. He believed the last increase was made shortly before the alliance of Caldwell & Co. and the Bancokentucky Company, of the last increase was made shortly before the alliance of Caldwell & Co. and the Bancokentucky Company, of Louisville, both of which went down.

It would have been dangerous to speed and any statement that I was speeding through Hapeville is without the semblance of truth. About two miles south of Hapeville I heard a siren behind me and thinking it was an ambulance or fire engine, I immediately reduced speed and pulled up to the right of the road. My wife looked back and as we saw no one back of us we drove on. No one hit me; I hit no one. I never saw nor heard any wreck near Hapeville. In Clayton county Mr. Banks overtook us in Jonesboro and informed me that I had caused him to wreck, and I returned with him to Hapeville. BY THORNTON W. BURGESS. Surprise is often half of fright That brings about a sudden flight. —Farmer Brown's Boy.

Flip the Terrier certainly had found something. There was no doubt about that. It seemed as if he would bark his head off or explode with excitement. At the approach of Farmer Brown's Boy he became still more excited. As his master came around the big brush pile to the side on which Flip was, the little dog looked over to him and then put his head in at an opening under the brush, and his bark became almost a yelp, he was so cceited.

took his head and shoulders in and then a hasty backing out, all the time barking.

"I do believe you are afraid," said his master. "Perhaps it isn't a Rabbit or a Hare after all. I wonder if Prickly Porky the Porcupine is under there. If he is you are a wise dog to stay outside. I would hate to have you get your face full of those little spears of Prickly Porky's. I can't think of anyone else you need fear who is likely to be in there."

He looked around for signs of Prickly Porky outside but could find none. No trees were stripped of their bark and there were no quills to be found anywhere. Farmer Brown's Boy returned to the opening and getting down on his hands and knees peered in. It was dark in there and he could Farmer Brown's Boy tried to encourage Flip. "Hunt him out, boy!" he commanded. "Go in there and bring him out!" You see, he thought that probably it was a Rabbit, and he felt sure that Flip couldn't possibly catch him underneath all that brush, for he know that a Rabbit could get through where Flip couldn't. Otherwise he wouldn't have encouraged Flip to go in there, for Farmer Brown's Boy is not the kind that allows his dog to kill just for the sake of killing.

But Flip didn't 'go in there and bring him out!" The most he would do was to poke his head in at a big opening, then back out and bark Although he felt a lot braver now that his master was at hand, it was quite plain to see that he didn't want to go in under that pile of brush. He was quite galistied to poke his head in and bark. "What is the matter with you. Flip?" demanded his master. "Why don't you go in there? That hole is big enough for a dog three times your size. Go on in and fatch him out."

Flip's response was a little rush that took his head and shoulders in and then a hasty backing out, all the time barking

In a moment Farmer Brown's Boy recovered from his fright and realized that there was no real danger. He stopped and turned just in time to see Buster Bear disappear deeper in the Green Forest and Flip disappear in the direction of home, still yelping. Then Farmer Brown's Boy began to laugh. He laughed and laughed until he had to sit down on a log from sheer exhaustion. "The thing I would like to know," said he at last, "is which one of the three of us was the most scared."

opens this morning. Miss Bennett has a role somewhat similar to her part in "Common Clay," which was one of the outstanding screen sucin any stage production in the country. Several exceptionally clever short subjects complete a program that should fill this house. Conductor Waiter Sheets and his orchestra present another special overture. NANCY CARROLL STARS ON GEORGIA SCREEN Nancy Carroll, whose recent pictures have made her one of the outstanding topics of talkiedom, is presented on the screen at the Georgia, beginning this morning, in "Stolen Heaven." This picture is, if possible, even greater than "The Devil's Holiday," or "Laughter," and the characterization by Nancy of the central role has been acclaimed by all critics as one of the cleverest pieces of acting of the year. The story of "The Easiest Way" is that of a girl forced, by the poverty and demands of her family, into what is mistakenly called the "Primrose Path." How she struggles for her happiness, only to find the inevitable retribution robbing her of everything and elegration of the clevers, forms a gripping and heart-moving story. Included in the supporting cast are Robert Montgombeau, Anita Page, etc. On the Fox stage Fanchon and Marco send one of their cleverest "ideas" for the week. It is built around the United States navy, with Arthur (Pat) West, famous funmaker, in the role of chief gob. It boasts a magnificent bunch of principals as well as the always gorgeous delegation of Sunkist Beauties. Enrico Leide and the Fox orchestra. # Revived Minor League Proposal Receives Support; Meeting Called TECH LOSES, GEORGIA WINS IN FIRST ROUND

What a break . . . to get back to Atlanta where it is warm and sunny. After ten days of freezing in Miami, Peachtree Beach is delightful, thank you.

And in addition to the other honors that have been heaped upon our Bobby Jones, there is a miniature golf course in Miami called "The Bobby Jones."

But as for that, a famous Kentucky statesman once had a brand of plug chewing tobacco named after him.

HOT OFF THE MILKY WAY.

It is said that our country just now is contributing millions of dollars annually to astrologers, palmists, horoscope artists, crystal-gazers and all sorts of soothsayers.

There is one plying a tremendous business on one of the downtown streets in Miami. His gaudily painted motor truck occupies one of the lots that did not sell. A banner modestly proclaims him the greatest astrologer in the world.

Outside his wagon, he has mounted an eight-inch brass telescope 12 feet long. He looks up the latest quotations on your future on the celestial ticker and relays it to you hot off the planets.

A curious person found that by consulting the attitude of Jupiter, the astrologer could come just as near telling him which horse would win the sixth race as he himself could have done aided only by a form sheet.

Dr. Leach was considered an authority on the lines of the thoroughbred and he could make his articles read like romances as they traced the descent of famous race horses.

As just such a young man as George Leach, alough not so good looking, I used to visit Dr. Leach daily when I was sports editor of The Leader and learn at his feet about The Thoroughbred. Just before the Derby of 1916, Dr. Leach told me at length why he thought George Smith would win the race; he went away back into the misty corridors of the past to state his case. He liked Star Hawk, the English colt, also.

And trustfully I went back to the paper and picked George Smith to win, Star Hawk second and Franklin third. Franklin was my own idea. And so they finished, one-two-three. That

Dr. Leach wrote several articles in 1922 as to why Morvich would not win the Kentucky Derby of that year. The doctor was quite certain that no son of Runnymeade could ever run a mile and a quarter; his get were nothing but sprinters, he wrote. Well, Morvich won the Derby. It was a great disappointment to Dr. Leach. And he died rather suddenly without living to see Morvich fall down completely in later distance races and bear out Dr. Leach's shrewd analysis of his form.

Washington and Lee's furiously fanatical attack rushed Georgia into a five-minute play-off Friday night at the auditorium before the Rulldogs squeaked through to a 32-to-31 vietory to stick in the Southern conference basketball tournament, wherein they are cast in the role of favorites. This mad game, which saw the Generals sweep the Bulldogs aside in the first half to finish it leading, 20 to 10, was easily the feature of the first day's play in which sixteen teams were reduced to eight who will compete today in the quarter-finals.

Georgia Tech, however, caught a swift cruising, hard-shooting foe in Florida and passed out in the final game of the opening round, 53 to 48. Both teams had over-developed offensive play and kept ringing the hasket regularly. The 'Gators were taller and heavier and kept possession of the ball and the lead most of the time.

and heavier and kept possession of the ball and the lead most of the time.

EVEN AT HALF.

The half ended in a 27-27 tie when Wages caged two foul shots awarded just as the gun sounded for time. The two teams were scoring along with Florida leading 38-34 when Bill Perkins, leading conference scorer and Tech's star center, went out on personal fouls. The 'Gators promptly swept into an 8-point lead.

Then Phillips and Gooding reduced the lead to four points with fine shots but Captain Wages was retired on personal fouls and the issue was settled. Tech's floor game suffered from the loss of these men and the 'Gators went on to win handily. With six minutes to play Florida led, 45 to 40, and in the closing struggle each side counted eight points.

The superb guarding and shooting of Emmelhainz and the fancy scoring of Waters featured the Florida attack. The 'Gators apparently had just found themselves after an in-and-out preseason campaign and seem to have the power to go far in the race.

The feature of the afternoon was the elimination of the defending Alabama team by the Vols from Tennessee, the Vols winning 26 to 20.

OTHER GAMES.

Auburn followed with a convincing 33-to-26 victory over Virginia and Duke had to stop a Clemson rally to win the next game, 31 to 27.

Kentucky, one of the highly regarded teams in the tournament, led North Carolina State by a few points all the way, finishing ahead, 33 to 28.

The elimination of Alabama closed out the afternoon program and left the way open for the evening.

Maryland, a fast little team, met a surprisingly stubborn L. S. U. five from Baton Rogue and was glad to get a 37-to-33 victory and go on to the quarter finals.

GENERALS KEYED.

With the decks cleared the big act of the evening came on. Ray Ellerman's Generals, who came to Atlanta as just another basketball team with a record of 4 won and 3 lost in conference competition, went into action keyed up to superhuman heights.

The tournament has never seen such a first half in its more than a decade of years. Led by Leigh Williams, a magnificent center, the Generals literally ran the Bulldogs off the floor.

United Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(UP)—
Track meets of the indoor winter season are developing a pleasant habit of uncovering likely United States Olympic team material. Count that meet lost which does not produce at least one athlete fully eligible for American team membership.

The latest eligible is Percy Beard, Alabama Poly hurdler who is a world record holder at 70 yards. Beard set a new mark of 8.5 seconds in winning the American A. A. U. hurdle championship.

Actually, however, it was not the A. A. U. meet that brought Beard into the top flight of Olympic contenders. He was as well known here as in his native Alabama. Unbeaten this year, Beard's crowning achievement came in setting a new world mark.

A second highly prominent young-ster to come to the fore is a miler, Carl Coan, of the University of Penn-sylvania. It was Coan who beat the veteran, Ray Conger, the other week, and in doing so, came within one sec-ond of the 4:12 record held by Paavo Nurmi and Joie Ray. Coan, too. is not a one-race athlete. He has been striving for the top for some years now and at last seems to have struck his stride. A junior at the University of Pennsylvania, Coan is destined to be heard from frequently before his college days and Olympic tests are done.

Possibly the most likely Olympic team hopeful is Russell Chapman, of Bates College, who may be the best half-miler in the amateur ranks of this -country. His most notable achievement of the winter season was his victory in the Millrose 880, in which he bested Dale Letts, of Chicago, and Sera Martin, of France. Chapman hopes to break the half-mile record before the current season ends. The second half score ran, Georgia-W. & L.: 12-20, 14-20, 16-20, 18-20, 19-20, 21-20, 23-20, 23-21, 25-21, 26-21, 26-22, 28-22, 29-23, 29-25, 28-27, 28-28, 28-30, 30-30, End second half. It was Coan who ran the anchor distance of one mile when the Penn team established a new world mark in the medley relay. This is something of a track novelty in which four runners go distances of 440 yards, 220, 880 and one mile. # Vandy Nosed Out By Tarheels, 23-21.

Captain Artie Marpet's field goal in the last minute of play gave North Carolina a 23-to-21 victory over Vanderbilt in the opening game of the Southern conference basketball tournament here this afternoon.

The Tarheels held a slight lead, 15 to 12, at half-time, but the Commodores came back strong in the last period and the game progressed on even terms. The score was tied at 21-21 with but about a minute left to play when Marpet sent the winning shot through the hoop to give North Carolina the game.

The game was bitterly contested all the way, with no individual stars on either side. Edwards and Dameron led the Tarheel scoring, while Schwartz piled up the most points for Vanderbilt.

Vanderbilt

Tommy Henderson proved to be a great guard for the Commodores, playing a splendid game all the way.

LINEUP AND SUMMARY. Florida's big, powerful club outscored Georgia Tech, 53 to 48, in the closing game of the opening round. It was what the baseball fraternity would call a slugging match. Neither team displayed finesse on defense and both scored with the clicking regularity of expert marksmen firing an a range with repeating rifles.

Florida was simply too big and tall for the lighter Engineers to tussle. The 'Gators kept the ball most of the time. It was only by eternal hustling that the Engineers stayed in the game and prevented a rout.

MACK ROOKIES POOR. FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 27.—(P) Connie Mack, manager of the Phila-delphia Athletics, thinks it would be as easy to pick the winner in a turtle derby as to select the outstanding rookie in his big pitching staff.

Not even the eagle-eyed Mack has detected any symptoms of future greatness among the recruits.

PHILLIES GO TWICE.
WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Feb. 27.
(P)—The two-a-day play was introduced at the Phillies' training camp today, despite the fact that only pitchers and catchers are on the job. Manager Shotton believes short workouts morning and afternoon will keep the players in better shape and prevent muscle soreness.

Fint Rhem, sturdy right hander, cut loose with a fast ball and curves while pitching in batting practice this afterwoon and spoiled a session for ambitious Cardinal sluggers. "Rhem ought to win 20 games for us this year," Manager Gabby Street remarked.

Ed Kimbrell, ace catcher of last year's championship Ogle-thorpe baseball team, who answered the call of the professional diamond pastime last spring when the Crackers beck-oned, has signed a contract with the Raleigh club of the Piedmont league, local friends revealed Friday.

TO HELP SWINGING.

MISS JOYCE WETHERED has offered an admirable suggestion to implant the idea of a natural swing in the player's mind. She suggests that one stand fairly upright with both heels together and then start swinging the clubhead around and down, as if a golf ball were there, permitting the weight to move with the swing. One of the greatest of all golfers, Miss Wethered says this system of practice or training has helped her more than almost any other single detail.

or training has helped her more than
In the first place, a natural, a irly upright stance with the heels together relieves most of the tension in the body. In the second place, it is a method that leads to swinging, rather than to lunging or slugging. In fact, it is almost impossible to lunge or slug from this stance without toppling over or losing balance almost completely. The idea is, even with the feet close together, to let the left side turn and most of the weight travel to the right with the back swing, then flow to the left with the down swing. If one can work at this 15 or 20 minutes a day it is a much simpler matter to discover at last just what the golf should be like and feel like. Under this test the clubhead gets much g, eater freedom and travels at a fastler pace, because it isn't interfered er pace, because it isn't interfered with by any violent or sudden body

CLOSER FEET.

T MIGHT be recalled that Bobby
Jones keeps his feet closer together during the swing than any other star. This lets him use much less body tension. For this reason he can also keep more weight on the left foot at the top of the swing than most golfera carry, which means that he has less weight transference to look after.

The golfer who stands with his or her feet wide apart will be more likely to find weight-shifting a harder problem.

And the same golfer will be more likely to find his entire system replete with tension. Bobby Jones of course, is built for this type of stance. Jim Barnes would find it almost impossible, what with his 6 feet 3 inches to handle on such a narrow foundation or platform.

NO SHORTER SHOTS.

It is undoubtedly helpful to keep the feet closer together on the shorter pitches and chip shots. It is here that one is more likely to tighen up and hurry the swing, and with the feet fairly close together there is less chance of hurry and jabbing. If one keeps the feet well apart there is a far greater tendency to stoop over too much, and this ties up the back, which also means the top of the spine and the

On these shorter shots only the hands, wrists and arms need to be used. The body must be kept in pliable shape, for if it isn't the body tension will spread at once to the hands and wrists, causing them to perform sudden and hurried antics that have no relation to proper stroking. The main idea the golfer must face is to put himself in position to make the stroke easier and simpler, without adding any extra complications in the way of stance and body position.

the American horse at the wire.

Observers were inclined to discount the victory, pointing out that the race was hardly a grand national test, since it was only at two miles whereas the steeplechasing classic is over four. They also believed Easter Hero could have won if the rider had not been overconfident.

The crowd was in a frenzy of excitement as the English jumper stuck his nose in front of Easter Hero.

Major J. B. Walker's Starbox was third in the four-horse race, eight lengths back of Easter Hero, who was beaten only by a head.

Listlessness of the industrials and utilities gave the general market a rather tired appearance and the sluggishness encouraged selling in the last hour after a final attempt had been made to inject spirit into the list via the merchandising and copper issues. Net losses of 1 to 2 points in recently strong stocks indicated that profittaking was a major consideration with many traders. Sales totaled 3,700,000 shares against Thursday's turnover of $,600,000.

Bonds, dull but slightly steadier, appeared to be relieved by the final decision on the bonus, for United States governments railied, some as much as half a point. The treasury's March 15 financing plans are expected to appear early next week. Wheat firmed after early heaviness, closing virtually unchanged. Corn finished slightly lower and cotton was off 8 to 11 noints.

The range of prominent stocks was marrow compared with recent fluctuations. United States Steel, after several unsuccessful attempts, made up the dividend of $1.75 but then receded and closed fractionally lower. Radio, after losing 2 points, more than made up its decline, although it finished with a 1-point loss. Reports that both Rock Island and St. Louis, San Francisco were likely to declare common dividends next week held those stocks relatively firm. although the 11 points.

The opening was steady. 1 point lower on March, but generally 2 to 4 is points higher. Some liquidation of March was probably promoted by the circulation of a few additional notices, while there was buying of later deliveries attributed to covering and the trade. A renewal of demand from brokers who sometimes operate for Japanese interests. good demand for cetton cloths and steadiness in Liverpool, but the buying was soon supplied and prices later worked gradually lower. A renewal of demand from brokers who sometimes operate for Japanese interests was reported and the buying seemed to become a little more active around 11.28 for May, but the realizing continued and there was a little New Orleans or southern selling here in the later trading. Closing prices were within a point of the lowest at 11.06 for March and 11.79 for October.

was less active than earlier in the week and the buying seemed to be largely on scale down orders. The first of the private acreage reports indicating that present planting intentions pointed to a decrease of 15.1 per cent in acreage was without apparent effect on the market. COURTS & CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The market continued Friday the irregular churaing process which has characterized its behavior throughout this week. A short sharp reaction during the first hour was followed by a recovery which continued into the last hour. Shortly after delivery time, at about the same point where selling had appeared on Thursday, it was announced that the senate had passed the bonus bill over Mr. Hoover's veto. The selling which started immediately looked as though it were based on the senate's action as an excuse rather than a serious reason for the sale of stocks.

HUBBARD BROS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Heavy selling in Liverpool by eastern interests spread to our market today and values slipped about half dollar a bale while absorbing it.

Our markets opened steady and held comparatively steady until Liverpool began to give way rapidly. Early cables reported that Bombay was a large seller there owing to the apprehension over delay in the British government accepting terms offered by Indian separatists. A late cable stated Egyptian market was in an overbought condition due to recent speculation and predicted lower prices.

export selling of United States wheat at present prices had a consplcuous steadying effect on grain markets today. Wheat trade leaders emphasized that moves to dispose of American seaboard stocks of wheat would be helpful in everting congestion of storage facilities later. Announcements that banks were asking increased markins on wheat loans had no market effect, the rate changes being looked upon generally as a seasonal step toward a new crop basis.

Wheat closed firm, unchanged to 1-4 cent higher; corn at 3-4 decline to 1-4 advance; oats 3-8@7-8 off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

to 12 advance; oats 3-5@7-5 off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Helping to give poise to grain values was evidence that European markets were in a watchful waiting attitude, and were following rather than leading price developments on this side of the Atlantic. Only at one stage did wheat show a downward trend. That was after corn had temporarily dropped to a fresh bottom-price record for the season, and news was received that American farm board allies had sold No. 1 hard winter wheat to Antwerp at equal to 10 cents a bushel under Chicago May delivery.

Throughout the day corn was under more selling pressure than was wheat. Oats were governed chiefly by the action of corn.

Provisions were responsive to changes In hog values.

The state of the s

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER. NEW YORK, Feb. 27 .- (A)-Bullish operations were pressed forward in a few utility, aviation, investment trust and miscellaneous issues in today's curb market, in the face of heavy profit-taking sales in several of the recent leaders.

the recent leaders.

Price changes at the finish, in consequence, were highly mixed. On the whole, however, this market held up relatively better than the big board. Trading was in fair volume, with transfers of 848.400 shares, although that was nearly 250,000 less than yesterday's record 1931 turnover.

American Superpower and St. Regis gained about a point each in active trading. United Light "A" sold up 11-2, then reacted to show a net gain of only a fraction.

In the high-priced industrials, A. O. Smith, which recently reported favorable earnings, surged up about 15, then slipped back 5 from the top.

Detroit Aircraft rose a fraction to a new 1931 high at 31-4, along with vigorous bullish activity in Curtiss-Wright on the big board. Starrett Corporation moved up a point, and DeForest Radio and Missouri-Kansas Pipe were other low-priced issues to elege a little higher. Pipe were other low-priced issues to close a little higher. Oils were mixed.

TEXTILE SITUATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(P)— Improved sentiment in the cotton tex-tile situation in the United States and some foreign countries was reported today by the department of agricul-some foreign countries was reported today by the department of agriculture.

The improvement was attributed to a continuation of the upward movement in cotton prices, which began in December.

At the same time, the textile situation as a whole is not far different from what it was a month ago. In the United States the sales of standard cotton cloth during January were larger than in December and above sales for January a year ago.

The increase in consumption of domestic cotton in January as compared to December, however, was less than the average increase during previous years.

The total visible supply of all cotton as of February 13 was placed at 1,800,000 bales above the corresponding date a year ago and 2,500,000 bales above 1929. The visible supply of American cotton was 2,000,000 bales above the corresponding date the year before.

TURN ENCOURAGING

mercantile reviews report although the forward movement in trade has been slight, the number of encouraging au-guries has increased. Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: "While a slight forward movement

"While a slight forward movement in the volume of wholesale and jobbing trade, as a whole, is visible in a summary of the week's reports, there are still a number of cities reporting that gains for spring or beyond are more lragely in sentiment than in actual turnover. Signs of expansion are visible in the west central and far west, whereas eastern and east central markets show a slight quidting in retail whereas eastern and east central mar-kets show a slight quieting. In retail lines the fag end of the 'sales' season reveals little else than the often re-peated report that retailers' stocks hav been worked down to a low point, but from wholesale distributors come advices that retailers are still buying weekly bank clearings $6,739,976,-000, a decrease of 22.9 per cent from a year ago. Outside of New York there was a decrease of 27.2 per cent.

Highlights of Wall Street BY CHARLES W. STORM.

Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 .- (NANA) NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(NANA)
The Jast of the shivers which have been passing up and down the stock market, which is the spine of Wall Strect, found expression in irregularity in the late trading in stocks today. While the Street has been agitated over the soldiers' bonus payments, now that the bill has really passed the sun is expected to shine on the security markets againt because the Street really feels very much pleased with what has actually been done in that it was not worse.

HARVESTER SHORTS CAUGHT.
Farming implement stocks were much higher under lead of International Harvester in which a big short interest has overstayed its market and is now being forced to pay through the nose. Bulls in International Harvester expect to harvest large profits out of the crop of shorts in the stock.
